TEMPLE TOUR

Learn more about Buddhism while visiting various temples around the island.

Plai Laem Temple is famous for its large Chinese Buddha overlooking the temple complex. It is tradition to "make merit" by feeding the temple fish.

The ancient temple of Wat Samret is situated in the southern part of Koh Samui and is designed in true Thai style, featuring over 30 smaller Buddha statues.

Khunaram Temple features a mummified monk. This monk predicted the precise time and date of his own death and can still be found sitting in a preserved state in the temple grounds.

Khao Hua Jook Pagoda is situated on a hilltop overlooking Chaweng with great views over the island.

ESSENTIALS:

Please dress respectfully. Shorts are permitted for men and women, but make sure they cover your knee. If a woman wears a tank top, she will need a jacket or shawl to cover her shoulders. Take some money in case you would like to make a merit with the monks or make a donation to the temple.

Angthong translates as golden bowl and with all the nearby islands being of different sizes and shapes, it makes a breathtaking panorama when sailing around the park. The islands are covered with tropical forests and cleverly named after their distinguishing geography - a kind of descriptive appellation, such as Sleeping Cow Island and Three Pillars Island. These limestone islands rise from the sea as dramatic rock cliffs and bizarre rock formations, opening to caves, hidden lagoons, shallow coral gardens and white sandy beaches, make for a popular and fascinating day trip.

DURATION:

ISLAND HOPPING AND BOAT CHARTER - KOH TAO AND KOH NANG YUAN

Cruise by speedboat to Koh Tao or Turtle Island which is located near the eastern shore of the Gulf of Thailand. The island was named after its turtle-like geographic shape and coincidentally the island is an important breeding ground for hawksbill and green turtles.

Unfortunately, mass tourism has negatively impacted the health of these magical creatures and the natural habitat around the island. Thankfully, a successful breeding program funded by the Royal Thai Navy and a coalition of local scuba diving centers have reintroduced hundreds of juvenile turtles to the island's ecosystem.

ESSENTIALS:

Cap, sandals, beach towels, sunglasses, Thai currency for entrance fees and some extra drinks

DURATION:

Nine and a half hours, group trip starts at 7:30 am and returns around 5:00 pm.

Recommended start time for a private trip is between 8:00 am to 12:00 noon, and you can return any time before sunset.

Afterward, we will guide you through Koh Tan's nature trails, which will lead you to the amazing mangrove forest. If you are not into walking, grab one of the bikes and take a leisurely ride.

It offers the diver stunning underwater topography in which to explore sheer vertical walls, beautiful coral gardens and a unique vertical swim through. Did you know that Epinephelus coioides (aka grouper) is listed as a Near Threatened fish species? It takes a grouper a long time to reach adulthood (reproductive age) and Southeast Asia relies heavily on groupers for food, and harvests the fish without regard to age. This depletes the species before it's of an age to repopulate making continued fishing of groupers unsustainable in the long-term.
